Seminar paper from the year 2004 in the subject Business economics - Personnel and Organisation, grade: 2,3, University of Tübingen (Fachsprachenzentrum Tübingen), course: Business English I, 3 entries in the bibliography, language: English, abstract: Industrial action is any organized action, such as stopping work or refusing to work normally, which aims to obtain better pay and working conditions. It is used to remedy a grievance or to resolve a dispute of any matter of mutual interest between employer and employee. Industrial action can mean a total stoppage of work or a performance of work only partly withheld, e.g. slowing down or insisting on exaggerated observances of work regulations and safety provisions. In this case we speak of a go-slow or a work-to-rule.

Bachelor Thesis from the year 2008 in the subject Business economics - Marketing, Corporate Communication, CRM, Market Research, Social Media, grade: 1,2, Maastricht University (School of Business and Economics), course: -, language: English, abstract: 1. General introduction Up to now, it has always been the task of marketing to be close to the customer and to know how to reach him in order to ultimately increase sales of the company's product or service. This focus on customer acquisition is widespread among companies, and many companies consider this to be sufficient in order to survive in the business world. Nonetheless, a vital flaw of this common view is that there is more than just focusing all efforts on acquiring new customers - That is, convincing the customer that it pays for him/her to continue doing business with the provider, which is called customer retention. Enter Customer Relationship Management (CRM). Throughout this paper, the definition of a CRM will be equivalent to the interpretation by Payne and Frow (2005), who state that CRM is a strategic approach that is concerned with creating improved shareholder value through the development of appropriate relationships with key customers and customer segments (Payne and Frow, 2005a). In the 1990s, organizations recognized the need for not relying on customer acquisition all alone, and stressing the relationship with the customer became imperative in the business world's strategic orientation. Unfortunately, implementing CRM systems turned out to require more work than the plain desire to be chosen as a provider over and over again. A great source of uncertainty was the vague definition of relationship management itself. Another pitfall was how to establish a CRM system in an organization. As relationship management was not up to executives' expectations, many companies were disappointed by the results - And yet, there were companies that succeeded in implementing a CRM system. Taking a closer look a

There is no doubt that electronic marketing has contributed positively in the life of modern societies, mainly the consuming societies. It allowed purchasing of materials cheaply without any limit, and without any restrictions. It also gave the chance to make a free selection and comparison between the prices of goods at the electronic department stores throughout the Internet. All such facilities are given to the consumers in a very short time without causing them to leave their office or home. In addition, the Electronic Marketing has exterminated the monopoly of goods and materials, all such acts of course are for the consumer's benefit. However, in addition to such advantages there are many disadvantages of such type of marketing; the Electronic Marketing has deleted the privacy of the consumer, because all of his movements through the Internet have been divulged and under control, in addition to lack of exclusive security through the Internet. Accordingly, many losses equally occurred to the customer and the merchant due to such acts of hackers who reveal the information and credit cards details. In addition, the Electronic Marketing caused many merchants, agents and monopolists to be vanquished because it gave the chance for direct communications between the producer and the consumer without passing through them; as such, many of such merchants have been yielded away from the way of this new technology. The Electronic Marketing was able to cause an upset down in many concepts and standards of economic science that have existed for so many years. Doors are still open for every new in this assumption and endless world as there are no limits that can stop such human ambition.

Seminar paper from the year 2013 in the subject Economics - International Economic Relations, grade: 2,0, University of applied sciences Frankfurt a. M., course: Advanced Business English, language: English, abstract: Globalization is one of the major topics and challenges of our time. It describes the process of the worldwide increasing interconnection of economy, politics, culture and environment. This compression affects individuals, society and institutions as well as countries. It can help to increase prosperity, social justice and global networking in order to make the world more equal. In the following seminar paper, the prime importance will be the look at the effects of globalization on the world economy in general. Despite the advantages of globalization, the negative side with all the disadvantages should not be neglected. Therefore, it is essential to look at the advantages and disadvantages that are created by globalization. The question is to ask, if globalization really has the force to make the world more equal and who are the winners or the losers of it? The available seminar paper tries to answer that question with a critical analysis of the topic. Chapter two pays attention to the fact what globalization really is and tries to identify the major characteristics of globalization. Chapter three concentrates on the consequences and effects of globalization on the world economy. The fourth chapter tries to identify the advantages and disadvantages. The seminar paper ends with a short result in chapter five, providing a short summary of the whole theme.

Seminar paper from the year 2019 in the subject Business economics - Trade and Distribution, grade: 1,7, University of applied sciences Frankfurt a. M., course: Handel, language: English, abstract: Multi-channel distribution, hereafter referred to as the larger literary spread of the term multi – channel retailing (“MCR”), is a marketing strategy that is indispensable in today’s retail landscape. At the same time, the linking of different distribution channels is not a new phenomenon and in practice has been practiced long before the invention of the Internet, e.g. in the form of catalog shipping and stationary sales, successfully practiced. (cf. Rittinger, 2014) The topic has first through the commercialization of the Internet gained new relevance and has become the explosive proliferation of smartphones ultimately one of the key topics of today’s sales development history. (cf. Schramm – Klein, 2012) In the present elaboration of this topic, the phenomenon from the manufacturer’s and the customer’s point of view will be examined disadvantages of this distribution system concept. First of all, the fundamentals necessary for understanding, beginning with the definition of the term and its conceptual delineation are explained and in the course of this, the difference between the integration and the separation of the distribution channels in an “MCR” system is discussed. In addition to the possible manifestations of such a distribution channel layout, the two development paths to the “MCR” should take place. The explanation of the basics ends with the presentation of the Sales channel selection determinants. In the third chapter, according to the objective given to this work presented the advantage and disadvantage of an “MCR” system after having presented the general condition to be observed in sales today. Chapter four discusses the concept of cross – channel management and how it benefits consumers and entrepreneurs by integration distribution channels. In particular, one of the most important trends in the sales landscape will be discussed the “Omni Channel Sales”. (cf. n.p., 2015a) To Excerpt from The Classification of Religions: Different Methods, Their Advantages and Disadvantages D. Classifications from racial relationships and from actually traceable mutual historical influences (including linguistic and other genealogical schemes). All of these methods of grouping (even those under A) have their value, often a very great one. They only over step their province when they claim to be the sole legitimate method or even the best method. They can at most do what it is possible for a classification to do, viz., illustrate a certain general phase, relationship, tendency, etc. Each must in the nature of the case omit the special advantages of the others; yet through all, the general character of the subject may be seen, just as one can see and recognize the same landscape from different points of view, while in each new standpoint we get new and otherwise impossible impressions. He will know it best who is at pains to view it from all the available points. So in the study of religions, the most varied views should be most welcome, so long as they are not partial, overdrawn, or fantastically colored. Only by various classifications and methods of study is it possible to bring out the manifoldness of the great idea.
