This book features an old man and his promise. It is a remarkable story of inspiration, interpretation, and promise. It goes beyond the universal definition for a promise by explaining how to create an environment for keeping promises, acknowledging that life has its own set of God created promises, and by using a metaphor to help demonstrate the ease of making a promise in contrast to keeping the same. The book cover is a reproduction of a watercolor, named I Promise, painted by John Quanrud. John is a Northwest Artist, and a Signature Member of the National Watercolour Society. Journey to Freedom is a heart-warming reflection on the experience, in the depths of one's soul, of taking God at His word. Yet because the author's words are faithfully grounded in God's Word, they apply to all who desire to live a life filled with promise, purpose and praise. I felt especially drawn to the tenderness of the autobiographical stories set within the context of the poignancy of the author's current situation. The book is a testimony to God's goodness in times of trial and to His faithfulness in turning sorrow to joy. - Kirk E. Farnsworth, Ph.D., author of Wounded Workers and All Churches Great and Small Jon Wood purposefully takes the reader along with him on his journey to discover the wonderful depths of the promises of God. He gently and lovingly moves us from simply knowing Jesus Christ as Savior to finding how wonderful it is to make Him truly Lord of our life. Jon's gentle style reflects the gentleness of his own spirit that is so completely in love with his Lord. - Katie Fortune, author of Discover Your God-Given Gifts In Jon Wood's Journey to Freedom he parts the curtains to give us all glimpses into his travels to wholeness in Christ. Through everyday incidents- common to all of us- we see God's hand working through the mundane to accomplish the divine. - Marge McRae Jon Wood is a 2000 graduate of City University, Bellevue, Washington. In chapter one (Inspiration Taken from the Old Man) he explains what inspired him to write this book. He writes, I finished the majority of the book the same month that my wife was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer. Since the diagnosis, we have experienced so many blessings, in so many well-orchestrated situations, in such a short period of time; I am convinced that we are in the shadow of His wings. I feel writing this book was no coincidence. I believe God used this past year to prepare us for the road ahead. My wish is that this book will serve as a daily reminder for those readers who want to find time to celebrate, reaffirm, or pray about their promises. Jon and Linda live in Kingston, Washington. Their home church is Bayside Community Church.

Yehuda Roitmentz is a boy growing up in pre-World War I Germany. His father is one of the few Jewish officers who served in the Kaisers army. His mother and uncle are determined to instill in Yehuda all the knowledge and traditions of his Jewish religion. He grows into an ambitious, well-educated man who takes over his fathers clothing factory and makes it thrive. However, everything changes when the Nazis come to power. Life becomes stressful, difficult, and even dangerous as anti-Semitic laws make earning a living almost impossible for Jews. Yehuda is soon forced to manufacture uniforms for the German army, even as he joins the resistance movement in the hopes of disrupting the Nazis as much as possible. Yehuda's resistance earns him a place in a concentration camp, but he is able to flee to Poland. Now, he must find a way for his wife and their baby to travel across Germany to join him. How can one man stand up to the Nazi agenda especially when the Gestapo has put him on their Most Wanted List? It will take ingenuity, heroism, but most importantly, love to triumph over those who wish him dead and to find the freedom he seeks.

The practice of prayer and meditation in modern Western Christianity is rooted in the Eastern tradition of early Church prayer as well as the wisdom of early Church fathers. In Centering Prayer, M. Basil Pennington, the author of the highly acclaimed Daily We Touch Him, returns to these roots, offering contemporary Christians a new approach to ancient prayer forms. Pennington combines the best of the Eastern spiritual exercises (such as the Jesus Prayer) with a spirituality for today's world. Addressing the obstacles that discourage people from praying well, he explains how to relax for prayer, how to listen to and be directed by the Other, and how to handle the pain and distractions that can stifle attempts to communicate with God. Centering Prayer has sold more than a quarter million copies since it was first published in 1982. In this eminently practical book, simple, inspiring instructions will help readers find the comfort and the guidance they seek through prayer.

God has a future planned for each one of us. However, we must seek him to lead and guide us toward the life he has planned for us. He wants our lives to be full of love, hope, faith, peace, joy, abundance and prosperity. Yet in order for us to have the life he wants for us we must let go of the things that have us bound. We were not meant to live in fear, depression, anger and unforgiveness, or to live with feelings of rejection and bitterness with no hope for the future. Therefore, we must develop a personal relationship with him in prayer, learn to abide in him and seek him for direction. Release the guilt and condemnation of the past and move forward in faith in order to inherit his promises. This book of prayers will help you to begin to seek God about releasing your past and prepare you to step into the future God has planned for your life.

Can psychology and religion engage in constructive dialogue? Has psychology a contribution to make in Christian formation? These are some of the issues addressed in this volume, marking 25 years of the Institute of Psychology of the Gregorian University. The twenty articles which make up the work offer essential insights into how psychology and religion can meet and interact constructively, at the level of theory and of practice. These insights are presented in the context of an overall Christian anthropology which continues to develop and to further refine its practical applications. The contributions are divided into four sections - theory and method, dialogue between psychology and other disciplines, applications in different cultures, and concrete experiences of applying a psychologically-informed Christian anthropology in the educational setting. The balanced approach presented in this work makes it both a serious instrument of study and a valuable point of reference for the educator. Its constant reference to a Christian conception of the person will help avoid short-sighted pragmatism.

Whilst serving in the Soviet army in 1973, Sergei Ovsiannikov was arrested and imprisoned for acts of disobedience under military command. It was while in prison, like Solzhenitsyn and Dostoevsky, that he began to ponder deeper issues and on release trained to be a Russian orthodox priest. This extraordinary but short book is about his search for true freedom. The issues he wrestles with are profound and, like any confrontation with truth, it caused him great anguish and pain. As Ovsiannikov wrote: 'It was in my prison cell that I lost fear. I realised that if they sent me to a labour camp with a long sentence, it did not matter because I was free. Of course subsequently I came to realise that Freedom is not given, you have to take responsibility for it.' It was during this time that he discovered Christianity and decided that this was the real meaning of his life. Later, after a spell as head of the Russian Orthodox community in London, Ovsiannikov lived for the last twenty years of his life in Amsterdam in charge of the Russian Orthodox community. Drawing heavily on Tolstoy, Dostoevsky and Pushkin and translated from the original Russian by celebrated translators Richard Pevear and Larissa Volokhonsky with an introduction by Rowan Williams, this brief spiritual book is a small masterpiece of its kind.
